EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Jonathan H. Backenstose on October 15, 2007.

Claim 4: The claim contains non-statutory subject matter under U.S.C. 101, "a modulated signal". The claim has been changed to:

-- A computer readable medium encoded with computer executable instructions to perform the method of claim 1 in conjunction with a hypersonic transducer.--

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-4, 19 and 21-26 are allowed. For the purpose of allowance, the original numbering of the claims has been changed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The general concept of transmitting audio information in a directionally focused manner by encoding side band signals of an ultrasonic carrier signal was known in the art at the time of the invention, as evidenced by Norris (US 5,889,870). The general concept of delaying input signals to transducer arrays for the purpose of controlling the directivity of an acoustically emitted beam was also known at the time of the invention, as evidenced by Pompei (US 2001/0007591 A1). However, the Examiner has not found prior art that teaches or suggests the modification of Norris or Pompei in order to provide a system that transmits at least two audio signals that contain different information into two separate hypersonic beams that are a result of encoding both the sidebands of the ultrasonic carrier signal as defined in the independent claims 1, 19 and 21. Other prior art has been cited herein regarding ultrasonic sound transmission, however the other prior art of record also fails to teach or provide suggestion to arrive the combination of the elements and steps presented in the independent claims, again when said elements or steps are collectively considered in regards to each claim. For at least the reasons listed above, the dependent claims are also allowed in view of their respective dependencies upon the independent claims.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Tanaka et al (US 4,823,908) discloses a directional loudspeaker system.

Milsap (US 7,130,430 B2) discloses a phased array sound system.
